EXPRESSES...

CONCERN IN COMMUNITY

Forword

How can the Christian and the world meet each other? Reality must be faced if we are to find even partial fulfillment in life.

A Christian may progress to maturity through his immediate concern in the context of student life. Concern can grow through meeting other people and new ideas.

A most rewarding and important contact with the world is our service in meeting its needs. Sincere dedication to this task is a step in becoming what we ought to be.

KEN LOEWEN

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Memory is one of those priceless treasures with which we as persons have been endowed.

Memory has its own unique way of influencing people. For good or ill, it causes them to act.

A yearbook is an aid to memory. It calls back into the present, experiences that were a part of an earlier chapter in life. It brings back to "remembrance" things that have been.

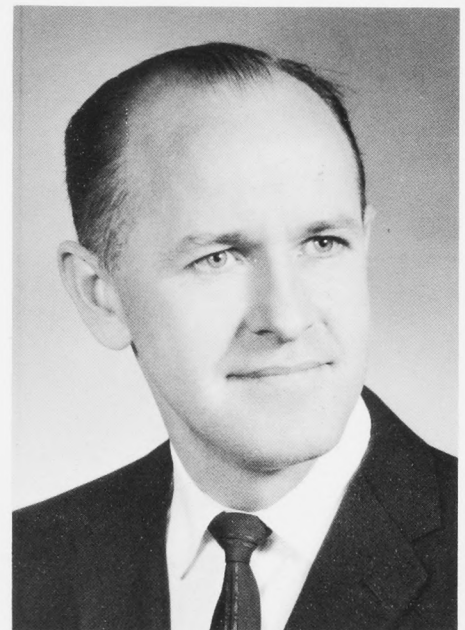

The present yearbook is designed to tell the story of one year in the history of Canadian Mennonite Bible College. For those who participated in that year it will be a memory stimulus. For others it will be a mirror that reflects something of the pulsebeat of the school program in 1966-67.

For all it should serve as an inspiration to the attainment of life's fuller meaning and its ultimate goal.

Former students and an orchestra joined the choir at the Christmas program.

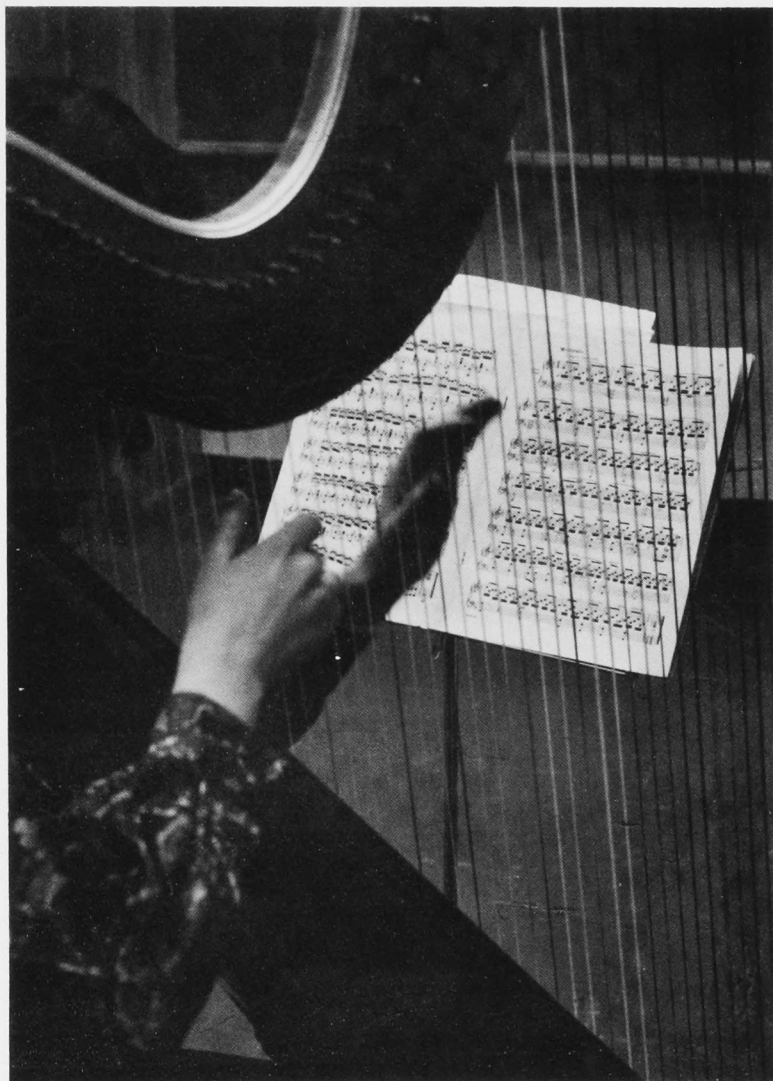

A dress rehearsal for the opening program.

In May this year the A Cappella choir will be visiting congregations in the midwestern states of Minnesota, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, South Dakota.

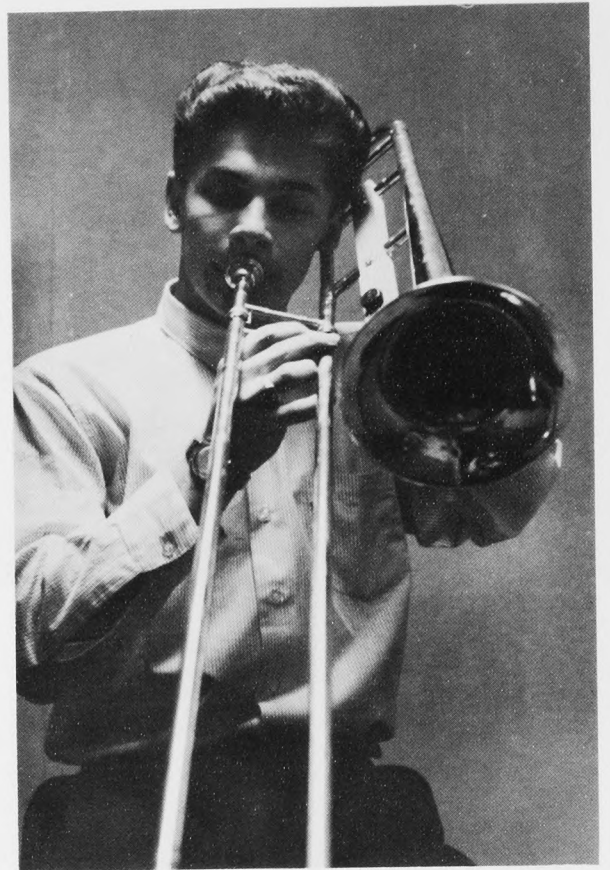

The madrigal group

Singing, in choirs and smaller groups, has always constituted a significant phase of the music program. The introduction of the instrumental techniques class has brought new sounds to the campus. Together with the familiar piano and violin, one can now hear the cello, trumpet, trombone, French horn and recorder as well.

The Christmas story was presented in the form of a narrated pageant.

directed by Candace Wedel

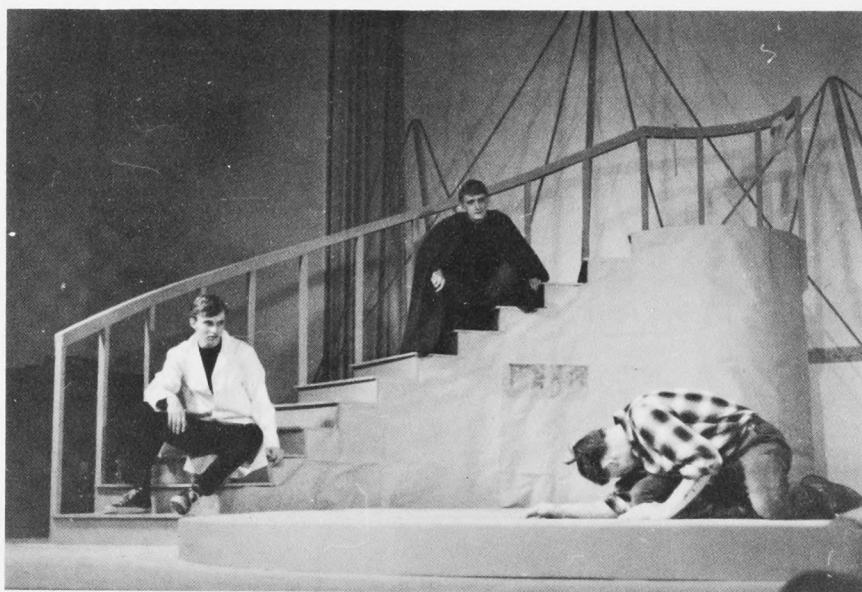

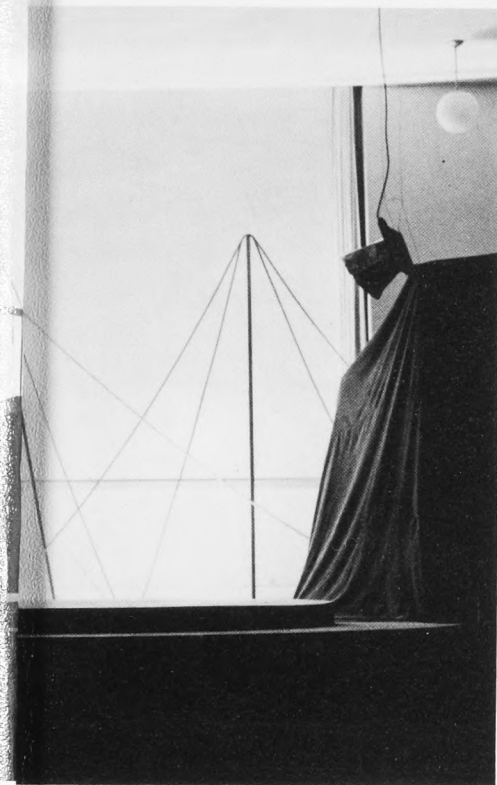

Why?

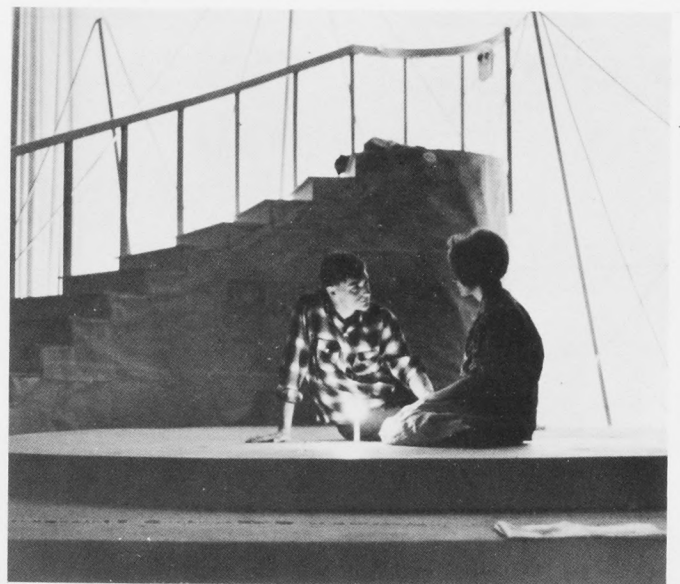

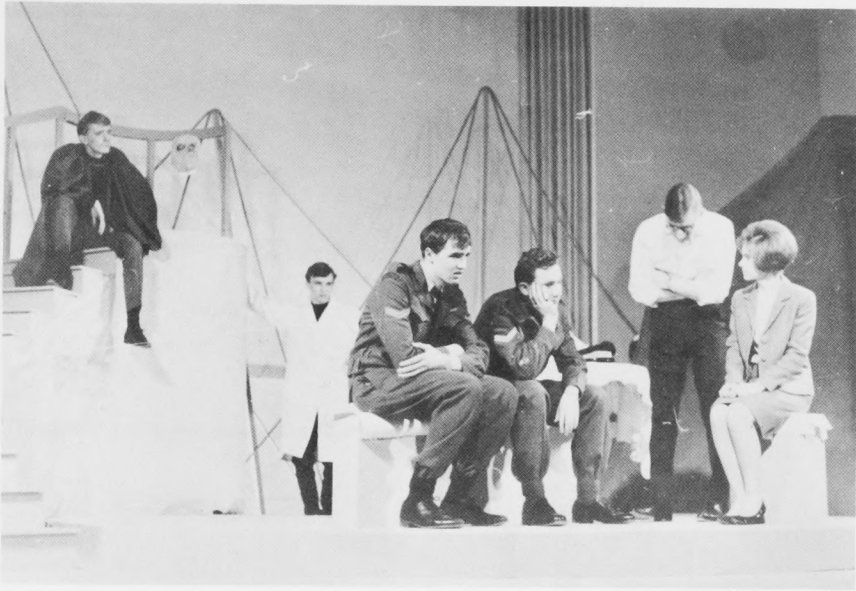

This was the question of Job. J.B. a modern businessman, had everything; then he lost it all. He fervently demanded a justification for all this misery. But, rather than admit a meaningless, godless world, he pleaded, "Show me my guilt, O God!"

Then God spoke — not to answer, but to silence him. J.B. (Job) was offered his life again. In spite of its frightening possibilities, he could again love life.

In faith, he could go on.

FIRST YEAR

RICHARD EPP
Drake, Sask.

The question of outreach takes on added dimensions after even one year of college. The most noticeable aspect is the fact that opportunity greater than ever before is afforded through planned and organized means.

More important, though, is the factor of introspection and personal concern which arises as we recognize the need for genuine commitment.

Responding to the need willingly, with dedication, results in a more valuable witness to our faith, as well as meaningful involvement beyond the walls of our Christian community.

GROWING CONCERN

... to serve

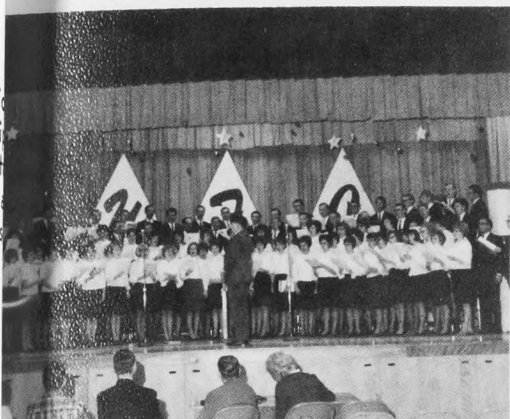

Need....Concern... Therefore.

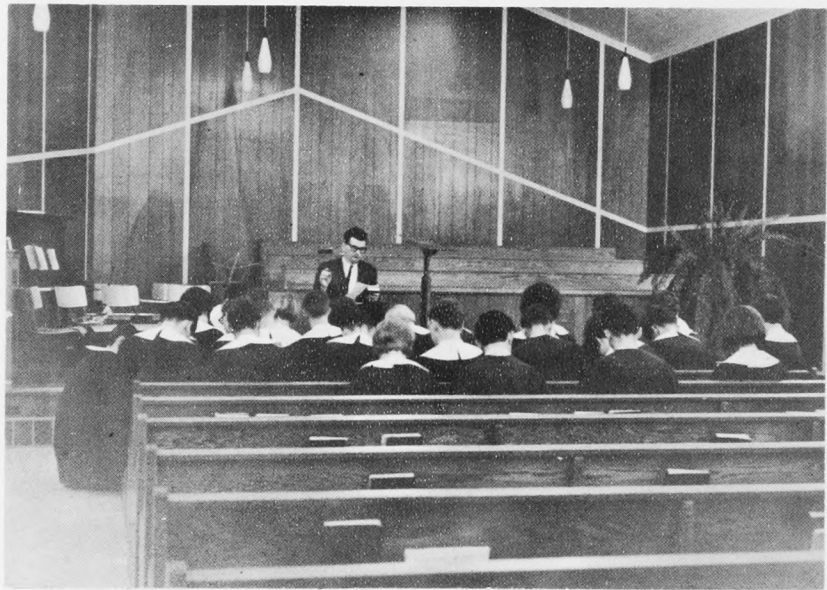

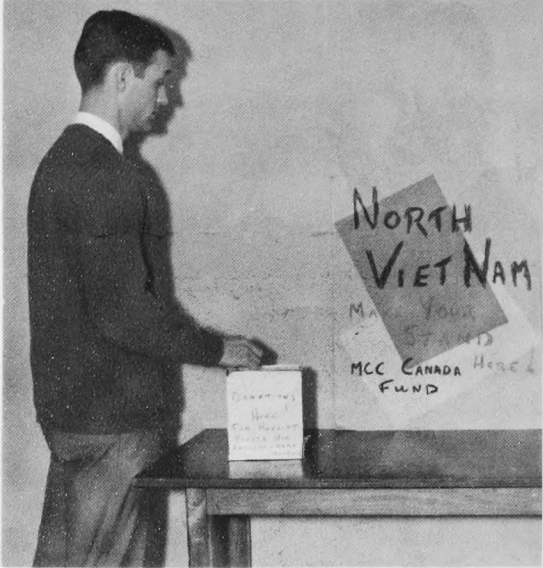

Deputational work takes many students into various hospitals once a week. Groups go to the Municipal Hospitals, the Manitoba Rehabilitation Centre, and the Bethania Nursing Home. Singing groups are accompanied by other students, each of whom visits "his patient" each week.

outh for Christ Rally in November.

During the school year the choir has sung in several churches in Winnipeg and in other parts of Manitoba.

The "We Three" singers, appeared at "Youth for Christ" meetings in Winnipeg high schools.

Children's Work

Bible study at the YOU begins with a game of crokinole.

Service Committee

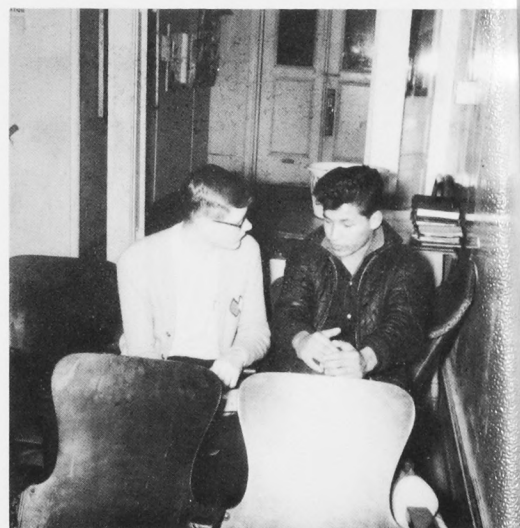

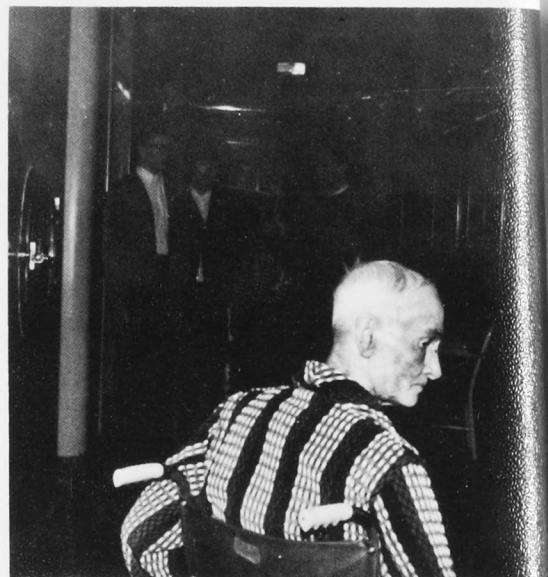

Each year students have been given the opportunity to serve outside the college. Hospital visitation and children's work have been a feature of the deputation work since 1947. For nine consecutive years (1957-1966), students sang and counselled at Union Gospel Mission each Saturday evening.

The reports in the 1952 Yearbook and Scroll on the work in St. Vital express the conviction of the total effort: God is at work.

As Christians, we have been called to serve. We have the resources: faculty, fellow-students, books, and definite service projects — all are ours.

The future of our service program will, however, depend not so much on material resources, or on a proliferation of projects, as on a deeper commitment to each other and to the Lord of service.

Ron Rempel.

...to become more aware

Anne Warkentin, a CMBC ex-student, and a missionary nurse to Indonesia, returned to the campus for the month of February. As "missionary in residence", she participated in classes and chapels. Students appreciated her willingness to join them in spontaneous, as well as in more formal group settings.

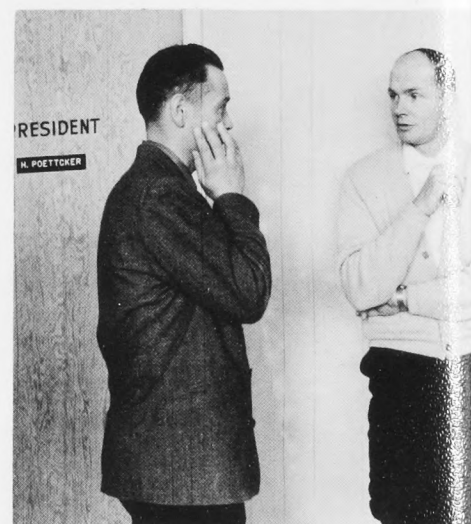

Forty-three CMBC students attended a week-end Vocations Conference at Mennonite Biblical Seminary, in Elkhart, Indiana.

The conferences are located in the college building. So we can become acquainted with the conference work and personnel.

As a second year student looking back over this past year, I view these last eight months at CMBC differently than my freshman year.

My studies have taken on a new perspective, and I have found them very meaningful.

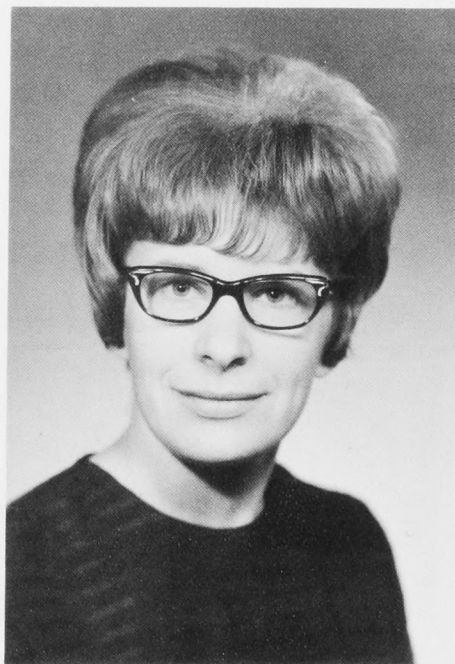

Through dorm and student life this year, I have come to appreciate especially the many Christian friends with whom I have been able to share and work. This experience has been a real highlight for me.

GRADUATES

MADELEINE ENNS

Bachelor of Christian Education

As a graduating class, we have shared several years together at Canadian Mennonite Bible College.

Our studies have covered various fields — Bible, Music, Theology and the Arts. We have lived together in Christian fellowship. We have been part of the church of Christ.

To be the church has always meant to fellowship together, to admonish and forgive one another, and, in everything, to bear witness to Jesus Christ.

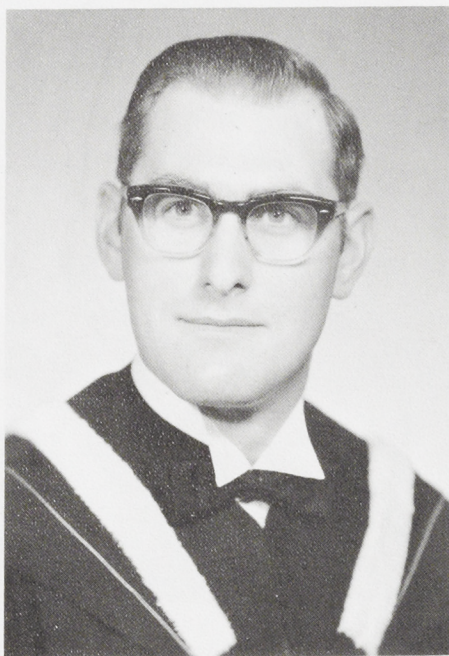

The Holy Spirit lived and worked in the first Christians. They were the New Testament Church. Throughout the centuries, the church has continued as a living body.

As we leave college, we want to join fellow members of this church wherever we are and together, through the Holy Spirit, be the living witness to Christ on earth.

Playing Bach already?
No, not quite.
Even on Yamaha's new B-6
that's going to take a little longer.

But still it's true that for adult or child, progress can be truly amazing. Despite the variety and richness provided by 11 tone levers, two manuals and one pedal octave, you can actually move ahead faster than on a piano.
(And even if she doesn't like Bach, the B-6 offers exciting interpretive possibilities on other types of music.)
